

Newsletter report

This is my final report to the AGM as newsletter editor. I took over as editor at the end of 2015 with the goal of establishing regular newsletters. To that end I am pleased to report that we have maintained the twice yearly newsletters, this year publishing in February and August.

The main content continues to be human interest stories, with the August newsletter documenting the lockdown experiences of some of our members. Despite the upheavals of the year the number of work places and special interest groups regularly contributing to the newsletter continues to grow.

Thanks to both the regular contributors and to those who have contributed on a one-off basis. Particular thanks must go to those who, in a year when it can so easily feel like there is nothing to report, stepped up and wrote interesting contributions for the August newsletter. Also once again thanks to Harold Henderson and Catherine Cameron for their careful proof-reading and to Catherine McKenzie for putting the newsletter onto the NZSA website.

Finally thanks to those who have encouraged me and given positive feedback over the past five years. I am very pleased to 'pass the reins' to Poppy Miller who takes over as newsletter editor from now. I hope you will all give her the same support you have given me. I look forward to reading the next newsletter!
